SIMAGRI NEWS

A few days ago, a new forum was made available for beginners. Players with less than a week on SimAgri can ask questions or get information there. After your first week playing, you can't post there anymore but beginners can use the Apprenticeship service and get direct advice from a master farmer. This service is not mandatory but we strongly advise you use it as the financial help you will get at the end is quite nice.

This week, a new thing is added to animal rations, colza and sunflower cakes can be used now. Until the 07th of december 21, you can make rations with colza, sunflower, colza cakes and sunflower cakes. Starting 01st january 22, you will use exclusively cakes.

Good game to you all,

WARNING

"Account abuse is harmful for game fun"

We would like to remind you that SimAgri allows only one account per person and per server. Thank you for respecting this rule. Not following this basic rule (which is in use in the large majority of online games) means to be banned from SimAgri.

Accounts are checked every day to avoid (present in all games unfortunately) cheating. If we find any rule breaking, the account is immediately de-activated (cf game rules "banning from SimAgri").

We want to remind you that cheating is detrimental to the whole SimAgri community it penalise not only the players but also the team in charge of the site as they spend time checking accounts instead of spending this time on game development and such.

GOOD TO KNOW

If you are going to be away a long period, you can get another player to take care of your farm in your stead. Check upon the list of players ready to perform this service. The list of players volunteering to be farm wardens is available through the "Control panel". Before handing over your farm, get in touch with one or more players to see how experienced they are as farm warden. After a bit of research and discussion you will eventually find someone to take care of your farm while you're away.

Once you found a warden, fill the ward activation date (the warden will start automatically at this date). Do not forget to live the necessary info (milking, sowing, maintenance, animal sales...). Upon your return do not forget to deactivate the option.
